COMMUNICATIONS STRATEGY

- September 30-October 1
- November 7-8
- December 11-12

Led by Kem Meyer
Communications Director
kemmeyer.com

Effective communication is really about “releasing the right response,” not “sending the right message.” People are not looking for more information—they are looking for ways to survive and make sense of too much information. The church should help people find the way. Instead, they end up adding to the confusion. This network is for anyone who faces the challenge of clearly communicating everything happening across the life of their church. Go beyond brochures and bulletins to get at the heart of smart communication systems that help people connect with Christ and each other.

“Kem was transparent, is a great coach, and is loaded with information. She has such great experience inside and outside of the church. This made for a very well rounded time of coaching. The experience was professional AND God-centered. It reminded me of the importance of the message we are communicating in a church environment.”
—Lori Johnson, Southside Fellowship, Greenville, SC

CONNECTIONS STRATEGY

- September 30-October 1
- November 6-7
- December 11-12

Led by Mark Waltz
Pastor of Connections & Multisite
becausepeoplematter.com

Call it connections, discipleship, involvement, assimilation. The question is how to help your guests and returning attendees find a genuine sense of belonging, involvement and growth at your church. First impressions matter: we must learn to meet them right where they are. Of course the Lord of the Church doesn't want them to stay where they are. How do we help them move from being hopeful consumers to other-focused, step-taking, involved participants connected to God and others around them?

The Connections Strategy Coaching Network is a great experience! I would highly recommend it to anyone in a “Connections Ministry” role—in any size church, with any size staff. I have gained much wisdom from Mark Waltz. I’ve learned so much from him through the ongoing Coaching model—so much more than I ever could from a short-term seminar. —Tina Watterson, Greenville Free Methodist Church, Greenville, IL

EXECUTIVE PASTORS

- September 30-October 1
- November 6-7
- December 12-13

Led by Tim Stevens
Executive Pastor
leadingsmart.com

If you're an Executive Pastor—or if you are a leader in a local church involved in strategic planning, budgeting, employment decisions and leading change—then this network may be a fit for you. Sometimes, instead of a conference, you need a controlled, safe forum to be blunt about the challenges you face and get frank, encouraging insight in return. This is for leaders who are highly committed to strategic, interactive, out-of-the-box learning opportunities and are willing to invest the time, energy and money for the journey.

“The networking and relational value was worth it alone. I have been exposed to some great people, resources, and support. Do it, but commit to it. The conversations and reading add the value you place on it. Make it a priority and you’ll be very blessed.” —Nate Drye, Abundant Life Church, Glen Burnie, MD
